"It's important for people to know there are thousands of foundries in the United States with millions of one of a kind patterns and molds stored away on shelves waiting to be discovered. I call them "Relics from the Past" because each one has a special time and place in our historical development. They were as large as giant sluice gates for canals or as small as bolts. They were door knobs, shower drains, water turbines or motor covers...the list is endless.

They should be brought out and transformed into objects of art to be enjoyed for their beauty as well as their historical significance."
